

JUST BECAUSE IT'S IN THE CLOUD, DOESN'T MEAN BAD GUYS CAN'T REACH IT.

Seemingly every day some large national company has its critical information hacked. Confidential corporate financial information, sensitive customer data, R&D and intellectual property are being stolen or compromised at a record pace, sometimes irreparably damaging brand reputations. What's even more frightening is that cybercrime doesn't just hit big companies. In fact, the majority of attacks are on small to medium-sized companies. Are you prepared and protected?

40%
increase in cyber breaches in 2016<sup>1</sup>

Nearly 2/3<sup>rds</sup>
of cyberattacks are on small/medium businesses<sup>2</sup>

55%
of small businesses reported at least one data breach in the past year<sup>3</sup>

1/2
of those had multiple breaches<sup>3</sup>

AVERAGE COST OF A DATA BREACH:

$4m
(large companies)<sup>4</sup>

$84k–$148k
(small companies)<sup>5</sup>

CONSEQUENCES:

Big companies are typically better equipped to handle it; smaller ones are not, and the cost of notifying customers alone can do irreparable damage to your bottom line.

TECHNOLOGIES MOST AT-RISK FOR SECURITY BREACHES:<sup>4</sup>

90%
of U.S. small/medium businesses DO NOT use data protection for company and customer info<sup>5</sup>

Only 50%
of U.S. small/medium businesses have secured company email to prevent phishing scams<sup>5</sup>

“It can’t happen to me” probably isn’t the best cyber liability insurance strategy.
